

Call for Papers

North Carolina Association of Historians Annual Meeting Hosted by the Hawthorne Inn and Conference Center, Winston-Salem, N.C.

The Program Committee of the North Carolina Association of Historians invites submissions of one-page proposals for papers to be presented in person at the annual meeting on 2-3 April 2027. The Association welcomes proposals for:

- Individual papers
- Panels (up to three panelists, one chair, and optionally one discussant)
- Roundtables (up to four participants) – five-minute opening statements from participants and then conversational dialogue with the audience.
- Workshops on specific teaching techniques or practices
- Mixed panels of K-12 teachers, students, university professors, and independent scholars examining cutting-edge scholarship and its classroom applications
- Panels devoted to research in progress (and potential for classroom integration)
- Undergraduate Panels organized by a Professor representing your University's Department.

Each proposal should include: a maximum 250-word abstract for each paper, a brief curriculum vitae for each participant (please include contact information), and biographical details for use in the introduction by the panel chair. Presenters will have a maximum of fifteen minutes; papers should be eight-to-ten double-spaced pages in length, excluding notes. Presenters are encouraged to submit a written paper to their moderator prior to the conference.

The North Carolina Association of Historians offers opportunities for historians in ALL fields—American, World, European, state, and local—to meet, discuss research, and exchange ideas with colleagues throughout the state of North Carolina as well as with individuals with research, spiritual, and other connections with the state. In addition to participation by faculty and graduate students at post-secondary institutions, the association welcomes individuals whose careers are in public history as well as Social Studies teachers in public and private schools.

This year, NCAH has funding to provide 10 scholarships of $200 each to qualified students to attend and present at the 2026 NCAH conference. Award recipients will be chosen based on the quality of submitted student proposals and notified when their proposal is accepted for presentation.

Papers presented at the Spring NCAH meeting are eligible for the association's annual award ($250.00) for the best student or faculty paper; all papers will be considered for publication in the Journal of the North Carolina Association of Historians.

Send proposals to conference@nchistorians.org by 31 January 2027. Further questions can be directed to the program chair Eric Walls at erockwalls@gmail.com. Additional information about the organization can be found at www.nchistorians.org.
